WHAT PAPA DID IN OCTOBER

PAPA members met on October 9th for their Board meeting and discussed how to share what blessings we have over the holiday season by collecting new clothes and toys for the moms and kids of WINGS who so sorely need them and also collecting canned goods for the Hillside Food Pantry of Evanston. On the 17th we met for a special added Safety Meeting held jointly with the Chicago Area Chapter of the Ninety-Nines (International Organization of Women Pilots) at Aircraft Propeller Service. Sean O'Keefe did an outstanding job guiding the extremely informative tour of their facility.

PAPA members attended the October meeting of the Chicago Executive Airport Board.

We continue our strong commitment to providing a flow of information from the pilot community to the members of the Chicago Executive Airport Board and from them back to our pilot community.

Join us in making a commitment to excellence - in safety education, in representation of the CEA pilot population, in working for improvements at KPWK, and in providing scholarship opportunities for worthy aviation students.

PAPA members fly for business and commercial purposes, give flight instruction, take flight instruction for recurrent training and for new ratings, fly for breakfast, lunch and/or dinner, and just fly for fun.

The FAA and its Centers of Excellence

Those with a proclivity for cynicism might judge this headline an oxymoron equal to military intelligence. But before you snigger and stop reading, consider this: under its Center of Excellence banner, the FAA has selected a team of universities with renowned aviation programs to conduct general aviation research and test things that will enhance its safety, accessibility, and sustainability into the future. No idle, unpaid for political promise, the FAA will invest at least $500,000 a year for the first half of the COE's 10-year run. And this is not the only—or inaugural—COE. The FAA established the first GA Center of Excellence in 2001. During its decade run its participating universities researched and tested pilot training, human factors, ADS-B, remote airport lighting, and other facets of GA. And the FAA has established other COEs dedicated to other aspects of aerospace endeavors.

Purdue, Ohio State, and the Georgia Institute of Technology lead PEGASAS, the Partnership to Enhance General Aviation Safety, Accessibility, and Sustainability. (Oh, how academics and bureaucrats do love their acronyms.) The Florida Institute of Technology, Iowa State, and Texas A&M round out the core team, and there are 10 affiliate universities.

Supporting the universities are more than two dozen aerospace businesses and organizations. They cover the spectrum of GA airframe, avionics, and powerplant OEMs and its operational representatives, from the National Intercollegiate Flying Association to the National Business Aviation Association.

Perhaps more important than the innovations that will spring from the research are the people who will do the work, graduate and undergraduate students of aviation, the next generation that still cares enough about flight to make it their life's work. They are the ones who will ensure general aviation's future not just because of their dedicated research, but because they got involved. —Scott Spangler

E. A. A. YOUNG EAGLES FLY AT PWK

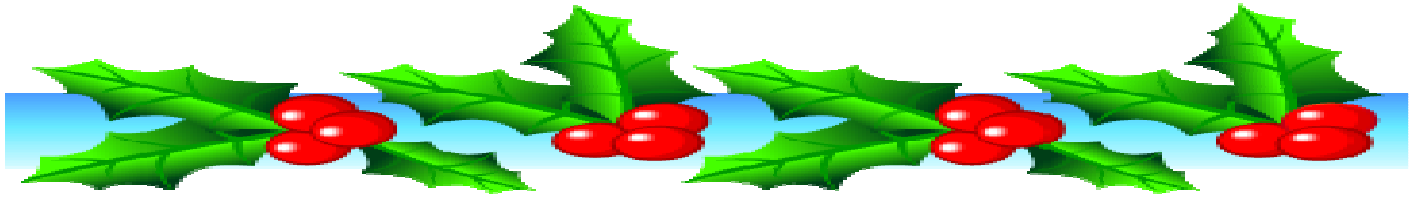

On Saturday October 27, EAA Young Eagles gathered at our own Signature Flight Support. Volunteers with a variety of aircraft set a PWK record flying 56 children on a beautiful, sunny day. The kid's introduction to aviation was exciting and inspirational (and that's what it was for the pilots as well)

Richard Steinbrecher is the CEO and COO of this endeavor. Carol Maccabe is the EAA Regional coordinator and record keeper. Pam Kavanaugh is the lead volunteer from Signature. Our ATC personnel provide excellent support services and keep us on course. Everybody helps. Everybody benefits.

If you want to get inspired, or re-inspired, about aviation, join in next time the Young Eagles fly at PWK. It's the best!
